Comment_description: It's unfair that Avista customers should have to pay for Grid west since Avista is one of six founding members of Columbia Grid which will use much of the data acquired from Grid west. would this data be at no charge to Columbia Grid? Also, of the $1.2 million loaned to Grid West from Avista, $188,187.34 is interest. If all the utility companies voluntarily withdrew from Grid west, why would Avista be entitled to interest? why couldn't future consumers of Columbia Grid be charged for all this? This seems like another excuse for deferred rate increases...totally unfair.
