Comment: Hello, I have a comment on Idaho Power's attempt to reduce the rate it credits net metering customers. First, I don't understand this attempt when they are campaigning to become 100% green energy by 2045. Reducing the rate of credit, would only hurt this push toward green energy. Second, why should net metering customers be treated differently when they are actually improving the state of power generation that helps all consumers as well as Idaho Powers bottom line. The power net metering customers generate helps reduce our reliance on out of state fossil fuels, which are expensive and environmentally unfriendly. Idaho Power should be encouraging its customers to install solar, not discouraging them by discrimination.
