Comment: "Boise Unitarian Universalist Fellowship thinks community ownership of solar is a promising idea, we feel that customers are interested in this type of program, and that the utility should think about ways to implement it. Idaho Power should work with community groups to develop a community owned solar subscription program. The goals of the program: o Permit entities other than Idaho Power to install and own solar arrays (community ownership) o Promote the installation of solar arrays that are located within communities (distributed generation) o Provide a mechanism for community members to subscribe to third-party owned solar o Support mechanisms within the subscription program that directly benefit low-income customers The future of Idaho is linked to clean, renewable energy that is available to Idahoans at all income levels. Community solar programs offer these benefits. Thank you Sharon and Dennis Rockwood, co-leaders Climate Action Team at Boise Unitarian Universalist Fellowship "

Comment: "comment for case # IPC-E-21-40 It is important that Idaho Power works closer with communities and individuals in helping make solar more assessable. The future will demand that we utilize all means of power generation,"
