Comment: Hello, my name is Jill Maxwell and I live in Moscow, Idaho.

I'm interested in the Avista/Hydro One merger case before the Commission because as a resident of Idaho, I think it is vitally important that we begin to adopt new clean energy sources and move away from a reliance on coal. Many more jobs can be created in the green energy sector than can ever be created and/or maintained through coal mining and processing.

From what I understand, the proposed settlement agreement between the IPUC staff and interested parties is a good deal for Idaho and Avista ratepayers.

I'm encouraged to see that the proposed settlement would begin the process of addressing the concerns I have regarding the liability to north Idaho ratepayers of the increasingly expensive and risky Colstrip power plant.

I am also encouraged by the settlement terms that protect local decision making and that increase investments in community conservation and energy efficiency programs specifically in Idaho. I'm especially happy to see that these investments are being paid for by Avista and Hydro One shareholders rather than by Avista ratepayers.

Finally, I encourage the Commission to hold a public hearing on this case in Moscow. The Commission should conduct outreach and hold public hearings in all parts of Avista's service territory in Idaho. But, the Commission has not recently provided an in-person opportunity for folks in Moscow to share their opinions, directly with the Commission, on electric utility matters.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Comment: Comment to IPUC re Colstrip

I live in Moscow and am interested in the Avista/Hydro One merger case before the Commission.

My reading of the proposed settlement agreement between the IPUC and interested parties tells me that this seems to be a good deal for Idaho residents.

In particular, I am encouraged to see that the proposed settlement would start to address the concerns I have regarding the liability to north Idaho ratepayers of the increasingly expensive and risky Colstrip power plant.

I also compliment you on the proposed settlement terms that protect local decision-making and that increase investments in community conservation and energy efficiency programs in Idaho. And I am also encouraged to see that these investments are being paid for by Avista and Hydro One shareholders, rather than by Avista ratepayers.

My only major concern right now is that there is not currently an opportunity scheduled here in Moscow for local residents to provide input on this proposed merger and have their questions answered in person. So I encourage the Commission to hold a public hearing on this case in Moscow

Thank you for your time and consideration.
