Please describe your comment briefly:
Idaho Power's complaint is unsupportable and the IPUC's jurisdiction does not extend to Oregon.

If Idaho Power does not want to acquire additional wind energy they should have pursued the same remedy they pursue and were granted by the IPUC in Idaho. But they did not and they do not have a legitimate excuse for not doing so. Consequently they must abide by PURPA regulations and the State of Oregon regulations.

It is dissapointing that Idaho Power, Idaho State government and regulatory bodies have managed to litigate and regulated themselves into the position that they do not accept wind energy based on PURPA regulations.

Fortunately for these two wind energy resources they have the option of develpong and providing renewable wind energy to Oregon energy consumers. The Idaho Power and the IPUC under current Federal and Sate regulations cannot deny them that opportunity.
